THE NON-LETHAL R-357 ELECTRO-SHOCK AMMUNITION TECHNOLOGY (ESAT) SAVES LIVES!

Dallas, TX. Arche Protection Devices, Inc. (APDI) is Saving Lives and Saving Souls with the R-357 Electro-Shock (ESAT) ammunition technology. The technology is an introduced in a 12-gauge shotgun shell with an incapacitating agent coupled with a high voltage electrical shock component. This trendsetter is like a taser system, but the system design does not require hands on use.

Once fired from the barrel of a shotgun, the ammunition works independently of any other human touch. The technology is best used with a 12- gauge pump action shotgun. Due to the speed of the round, it allows the user more distance from the target than other conventional ammunition. Once released both the chemical agent and the payload is delivered to the target and down goes the assailant, neutralized, but alive.

The ESAT consists of circuit boards, modules, batteries and various other components creating a highly technical ammunition. It contains its own independent charging system and delivers the payload to the intended target. The technology delivers the payload subcutaneously and causes involuntary muscular function, allowing law enforcement to capture the assailant without harm.

The ESAT has been through strategic testing and is anagenetically designed to accommodate the general public, law enforcement, military armed forces and other governmental agencies. The technology has been scaled down to cut cost and is available for retail, wholesale and distribution.

APDI was founded in 2018, by former Military Officer D.A. Davis. The technology was inspired by the massive use of deadly force around the world creating gaps in society. "Gaps create distances between people within a society" Davis believes, "I am willing to be a gap filler and a restorer of the breach", as he continues to express his concern for America remaining a great nation. Davis spends his time on the lecture circuit speaking and encouraging people to use non-lethal ammunition as an alternative. His message of peace coupled with his mantra of Saving Lives and Saving Souls has become the pillar of the company's campaign.

Davis and the APDI staff will be demonstrating and displaying the ESAT at the NSSF Pop-Up Shot Show in Las Vegas, Nevada's convention center on January 22, 2020, booth#62036 @ 8:30a.m.-5:30p.m.
